Finally, a Contingency request from ICRN for half of $1,095 allocation for a new FM modulator costing $547.50. A representative from WNTC explained that one half of the $1,095 is paid by Clarkson - half by Potsdam State. "An FM modulator is basically a small transmitter. When the present modulator was built, it was designed for experimentation only, and was intended to be temporarily installed pending installation of a reliable, permanent, quality unit. In the long run it would increase WNTC's listening audience and therefore increase the number of advertisers and the revenue received from this. This will allow ICRN to go just that much more self-sufficient and therefore become less dependent on the two colleges for funds."
